

Home Learning

Homework: Due in Thursday.

Spelling-

Neolithic man, Neolithic woman, dwelling, mammoth, jewellery, house, spear, weapons, occupy, existence

Topic- Next half term, we will be learning about the stone age. For your homework, you need to research the four types of dwellings during that period and replicate one (this may be a small model, a detailed drawing with labels or anything else you can think of using your imagination! I can't wait to see what you create!

Times tables: Mixed (0-12)

Attendance: 91.5%

Let's keep aiming for 100% Oaks!

Dear Families,

The Oaks have had a busy week drafting editing and finally presenting their writing. They chose to present their writing by typing it up: they decided this was most suitable as it was a formal letter from the Government.

In Maths, they continued to improve their knowledge of fractions and moved onto subtracting. They noticed most of the skills they already learnt were transferable and were able to tackle some trickier, reasoning questions.

In Art, they completed their WW2 inspired piece in the style of LS Lowry and I am blown away by their efforts. Everyone had a different perspective of how this should look and all children persevered to achieve their best. Well done Oaks!

The Oaks rounded off their learning about Salvation this week in RE and showed their deep understanding of what this means relating it to the Big Frieze. They could clearly show the importance of Easter (above and beyond the chocolate) from a Christian perspective.

Finally, we are excited to continue watching our plants grow in the green house (and are hoping the snow holds off this weekend) as part of our understanding of the efforts during the war: Dig for Victory. Don't forget to water them Oaks!

Have a lovely Easter break!

Miss Houcke

Worker of the Week

Worker of the week this week is awarded to Ava for her incredible perseverance and determinations during our unit on fractions which has led to her being much more confident and sharing her understanding with the class- excellent effort Ava!

Presentation Award

Presentation award this week is for Lilliah for making a truly determined effort with her handwriting over the past few weeks and it looks fantastic- keep up the hard work!